

Chicago Microtechnology & Nanotechnology Community and AtomWorks

Present our Joint 2003 Kick Off Event!

"Re-Energizing the Midwest's Economy through Application of Nanotechnologies"

If you are a technologist, scientist, professor or engineer, you will have the chance to meet with and interact with potential research sponsors, partners and colleagues and potentially even identify new research opportunities.

Jim Murday, Director of the National Nanotechnology Coordination Office, will give a keynote address on the impact of nanotechnologies on our lives and highlight the future goals, objectives, programs, and focus areas of the National Nanotechnology Initiative.

BP Amoco, Caterpillar and Motorola each have their long-range nanotechnology initiatives. Meet some of the leaders with the passion and the ability to influence the direction of their companies' future support of nanotech research.

Bill Testa, VP of the Federal Reserve Bank of Chicago will tell an inspirational story of how Chicago came out of its manufacturing slump through application of technology and how it can do so again!

Our distinguished panel of corporate leaders will identify critical needs that they hope can be addressed through nanotechnology to enable specific applications in their industries:

Mel Luetkens, Business Technology Manager, BP Amoco
Tarsem Jutla, Manager of Innovation and New Technology, Caterpillar
Iwona Turlik, Corporate Vice President for Advanced Research, Motorola

The Federal Reserve Bank of Chicago has as part of its mission the support of economic development in the area. Emerging technologies will play a significant role in our region's future.

Our primary sponsor for this event is Battelle, who understands the importance of this technology.

The Illinois Coalition, will co-sponsor as part of its mission to support Chicago high-technology.
